Why I'm Running

////////////////////////////////////

As president, I will pursue the most ambitious reimagining of College Council since its founding in 1955. As Emory's largest student governance organization, we will become a national leader in student representation. As your president, I will make College Council more professional, more responsive to the student body, and more transparent than any organization on campus. We will lead the way in being a voice for every student in Emory College, engaging the entire community to build a better Emory College - together.

About Me

From my first day at Emory I've believed that student government can be reformed to meet the needs of every student. As Speaker of the Senate at Oxford I completely overhauled our documents, created our first code of elections, and wrote our first transparency requirements, and created a system for us to act as a voice for the student body. In Atlanta I led the commission that changed our code of elections after the disastrous 2018 elections, and currently serve as the Chief of Staff for College Council. Outside of student government, I study Political Science (surprise!) and Computer Science. I want to be a voice for every student in Emory College, so please get in touch!

For my campaign, I want to try something that hasn't been done before!

You can read my ideas to build a better College Council and a better Emory College in this document, but I want to hear from you. Over the three-week campaign period I want to hear your concerns, your ideas, and your hopes for how we can make our school better. I want to know if there's something I've missed, or even if you disagree with something! I plan to feature these ideas as part of my platform, and let the Emory community shape this campaign, so please submit an idea!

Every year students like me tell you how they're going to change student government. Rarely do we come close to our platforms. That's why throughout my campaign I will update my platform with bills and detailed plans for what I will accomplish as College Council President.

Transparency

As president, I will make College Council the most transparent organization on campus. With a budget of five hundred thousand dollars, the largest of any student government organization, the student body deserves to know where their money is going. At Oxford I created our first transparency requirements. I will build on this experience to create and publish an annual budget report so that the student body can see how their money is being spent.

As president, I will hold office hours every week, and make myself available to any student. I will also use Zoom Video Chat to provide access to students who cannot attend in person. Furthermore, I will ensure that College Council has a table every single week at Wonderful Wednesday to listen to the concerns of the student body.

We will create a new website, working with LITS to get a domain name such as collegecouncil.emory.edu. No student government within Emory has been capable of creating a working webpage in years, so clearly a new system is necessary. I will create a Vice President of Technology, who will be responsible for overseeing the webpage, internal communication tools such as Slack, and make sure that College Council is using every tool at our disposal to keep the student body informed. We will use social media and our webpage to publish our minutes every week and livestream all meetings. With all of these tools at our disposal we will make the 64th College Council the most transparent since its creation in 1955. For far too long College Council has not been open to the student body, and rebuilding our relationship starts with complete transparency.

Representation

It is time for College Council to rethink our relationship with student organizations, and work to ensure that the needs every student is represented. College Council should represent every single student in Emory College by expanding the role of student organizations. As president I will restructure College Council, creating a bicameral legislature and expanding student representation. Furthermore, I will reintroduce positions for students intending to enter the Nell Hodgson Woodruff School of Nursing or the Goizueta Business School. With so many students in Emory College planning to enter these schools, it's time to build these relationships and ensure these students are represented in College Council.

Furthermore, as President I would create a Student Advocacy Center, to provide representation to any student facing conduct violations, honor code violations, academic appeals, or who simply needs help navigating Emory's bureaucracy. This center will ensure that the rights of every student in Emory College are respected.

Student organizations are not just groups in need of funding, and we should stop thinking of them as such. As many student governments across the nation have done, I will create representation for student groups.

From cultural groups to political groups to special interest groups,

Emory students come together to create a diverse range of student organizations. These groups represent a diverse student body better than one student government ever could. As president I will create a Student Organization Legislature, comprised of club representatives. This organization will have the power to create and vote on legislation, and provide a powerful way for student organizations to address the concerns of the student body, concerns that may not have been addressed otherwise. This body will help us reimagine College Council, and help us become the most representative organization on campus.

Responsiveness

As president, I will ensure that College Council is the most responsive organization on campus. We will create new structures and systems to directly respond to the concerns of students in Emory College. Beyond our transparency reforms, we will build a committee structure that allows us to respond to concerns across a variety of campus issues and inform the student body of how we are responding to their needs.

From campus services to academics to food and more, College Council has always worked to advance the needs of students in Emory College. However, our current system for doing so is informal, relying on the initiatives of individual legislators. College Council legislators have made change across all aspects of campus life, but a new system is needed to make sure nothing falls through the cracks. Of course, legislators will always be free to pursue their individual initiatives as well.

Currently, College Council's committee structure is led by the executive board. Committees led by our Vice Presidents of Communications and Vice Presidents of Administration, among others, do fantastic work, but elected legislators deserve a greater role in College Council.

We will create committees to respond to all aspects of student life, from Academics to Dining and more. Most importantly, they will be led by elected student legislators and membership will be open to the student body. Furthermore, we will create two online systems to track student concerns and initiatives. Students will be able to submit concerns that affect individual issues through an online portal and receive updates as we act on their behalf. Finally, we will regularly update the College Council website with an initiative tracker that impact the entire student body. Students will be able to see how their legislators are working to improve their campus.

Professionalization

One of the most important changes I will make is ensuring that College Council is a more professional organization. College Council is filled with dedicated people, uniquely committed to improving Emory College. However, we can keep our collegial spirit while improving the way we are organized. As president, I will reform our executive board to be more streamlined and efficient. Far too often we operate on precedent, and our governing documents are sorely in need of reform. We will create a full-time secretary,
